

ABSTRACT:

In a LED display, photosensors (14) are added to the (periphery of the) display (1) to detect ambient light, and means (20) are provided to compensate for this by adjusting drive signals.

5 Fig. 1